Susan Gallagher Retires After 24 Years at JOH JOH Hires New Director of HR

June 10, 2013 Billerica, MA – After 24 years in a variety of positions, Susan Gallagher is retiring from JOH. For the past 16 years Susan headed up JOH's Human Resources Department. Over her career at JOH, she developed and executed: long-term strategies, company policies, company events, personnel solutions, and partnered with management on all associate-related issues. Susan also oversaw governmental regulations and compliance, pay and job classification structures, and health insurance policies and plans.

“Susan helped build JOH,” says President and COO John Saidnawey. “She created and managed our entire HR department as we grew from 50 employees to over 500. Her dedication and support helped define the culture that we are so proud of at JOH. Susan has done an incredible job at shepherding us, and we are going to miss her tremendously.”

Susan and her husband will be moving to their Hyannis Port, MA home full-time where they will enjoy their time together as well as spending more time with their children and grandchildren.

JOH hired Laura George as the new Director of Human Resources, effective June 3, 2013. Laura comes to JOH with extensive experience in human resources, most recently at Cambridge College in Cambridge, MA. Prior to that she held HR positions at Simmons College in Boston and at MASCO (Medical Academic Scientific Community Organization), a company providing services to the medical and college communities in the Longwood Medical Area.

“We are thrilled for Laura to join the JOH team,” said Saidnawey. “Her expertise and knowledge will be instrumental as JOH continues to grow.”

Laura and her husband live in Boston. They have four daughters and recently welcomed their first grandchild.
